

YEAR IN REVIEW

Jakarta Gymnastics 2025

(L-R) Joscelyn Robertson, Skye Blakely, Dulcy Caylor, Leanne Wong

Nathan Roman © Filippo Tomasi

2025

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction

A Message from USAG’s Board Chair and President & CEO..... 4
New Year, New Leadership..... 5
2025 By the Numbers 6

New Quad, New History

Programs Introduction 8
Artistic 11
Trampoline & Tumbling..... 13
Rhythmic 14
Acrobatic 15
Parkour 16
Gymnastics for All..... 17
Youth Gymnastics 18

Community Celebration

Hall of Fame 20
Annual Award Winners..... 21
National Gymnastics Day / National Coaches Day..... 22
Congress / Education 23
Creator Program, Medical Team..... 24
USA Gymnastics Foundation 25
National Training & Wellness Center..... 26

Photos of the Year 26

Partnerships..... 34

Front cover: Donnell Whittenburg
Back cover: Alana Hilrota, Sasha Kuliyeu, Nina Keys, Ziah Khan, Leyla kukhmazova

Unless otherwise noted, all photos are by © USA Gymnastics / John Cheng

A MESSAGE FROM USAG BOARD CHAIR KATHRYN CARSON & PRESIDENT & CEO KYLE ALBRECHT

Kiran Mandava, Kai Uemura, Riley Loos

© Filippo Tomasi

© Rosa Poetschke

Dear USA Gymnastics Community,

With 2025 marking the start of the next Olympic quadrennium, it brought 12 months of excitement and newness: new athletes, new achievements, and even new leadership. The pages of the 2025 USA Gymnastics' Year in Review tell the story of how the gymnastics community collectively stepped into our next chapter, full of promise.

It was a year that saw American athletes earn 310 medals internationally, logging multiple "firsts" in international competitions across all disciplines. Collectively, established veterans and a new generation of athletes showcased the excellence, innovation and creativity that we all seek to embody every day at USA Gymnastics.

Thanks to this community, the organization itself demonstrated those qualities and more in 2025. And we did it together.

We announced several new events, including the return of American

Cup, which will play a key part in Olympic preparations by providing international, mixed-team competition every spring. We also launched the creation of two new domestic competitions with the inaugural Acrobatics and Tumbling Development Program National Championships set for 2026 and the women's artistic National Xcelebration on tap for 2027. Both events will showcase the grass roots participation and youth development that drive the vitality of our sport.

Closing out the year, the announcement of USA Gymnastics' proposed Training and Wellness Center in Noblesville, Indiana, served quite literally as a concrete symbol of the next phase of our evolution.

As the facing page of this Year in Review reflects, 2025 was also a year of new leaders. In an athlete-centric organization, it is only fitting that former athletes play key roles, especially in positions where athlete development is the priority. We are proud to welcome back Betty Okino and Alexander Renkert to important new positions in women's artistic and trampoline and tumbling, respectively, and our planned CEO transition that unfolded over the course of five months demonstrated USA Gymnastics is once again able to stand strong and continue our mission to support athletes, sustain excellence and strengthen the community.

As 2026 begins, we are all excited to take USA Gymnastics into our next chapter — driving growth that advances athlete success, strengthens our community, and builds on the culture of safety and wellness that has defined the past seven years.

We can't wait to see what we all accomplish together.

Kathryn A. Carson

Kathryn Carson
Board Chair

Kyle Albrecht

Kyle Albrecht
President & CEO

New Year, New Leadership

Talented trio joins USAG staff

In addition to President and CEO Kyle Albrecht, several new leaders joined the USA Gymnastics staff in 2025. In January, USA Gymnastics Hall of Famer and Olympic bronze medalist Betty Okino was named the Developmental Lead for the U.S women's artistic program. In April, Dr. Rebecca Holwerda joined USAG as Chief Operating Officer after four years as commissioner of the Indiana Department of Administration, where she led an agency of more than 200 employees and statewide functions including contracts, facilities management, and public works. In November, Alexander Renkert stepped away from his role as Athletes' Council chair to become Trampoline & Tumbling Program Director. Renkert is a nine-time World Championships team member, eight-time World Championships medalist and three-time U.S. champion.

Albrecht announced as next President & CEO

National and international sports executive Kyle Albrecht was announced as the next USAG President and CEO in November and began his tenure January 1, 2026.

Albrecht's wide-ranging experience includes commercial and partnership development, grassroots participation programs, fan engagement, event management, and brand growth. Working with Major League Soccer since 2019, he was tapped in 2023 to be Vice President of MLS GO, where he was responsible for the launch of MLS's grassroots, youth participation platform. In 2024 he was named General Manager of MLS NEXT, where he led the top youth soccer development program in America while delivering record growth.

Albrecht's earlier MLS experience included oversight of commercial strategy for MLS's marquee events, including the MLS All-Star Game and MLS Cup, and developing MLS partner solutions with major corporate brands. He previously spent nine years with Under Armour, launching the brand's soccer category and leading European sports marketing.

A native of Silver Spring, Md., Albrecht played NCAA Division I collegiate soccer at George Washington University, where he earned a bachelor's in business administration.

Leung concludes transformational tenure with USAG

Having led a historic turnaround that saw athlete health, competitive achievement and business success powerfully align, USA Gymnastics President & CEO Li Li Leung stepped down after nearly seven years of service at the end of 2025.

Since her hiring in March 2019, Leung guided USA Gymnastics through a cultural transformation that began a new chapter for the sport and re-established USAG as a leader in the Olympic and international gymnastics movements.

USA Gymnastics moved rapidly toward rebirth after Leung took on her role, reaching a settlement with abuse survivors, establishing an Athlete Bill of Rights, and expanding the funding structure for National Team athletes that brought greater equity across disciplines and genders. In 2022, the organization continued its commitment to athlete advocating by launching a groundbreaking program to help provide mental health visits to National Team athletes and their coaches. On the business side, USA Gymnastics restored its corporate partnership family with both Fortune 500 and endemic brands, headlined by the largest partnership in its history, a five-year deal with Nike. USA Gymnastics athletes likewise experienced a resurgence of success, with history-making performances across all disciplines. Leung continues to be involved in the sport as a member of the World Gymnastics Executive Committee.

2025 BY THE NUMBERS

382M

Impressions on USA Gymnastics
Social Media channels

240,000

Members of USA Gymnastics

31

Age of Donnell Whittenburg in becoming the oldest American to win a world title

3,300+

Member Clubs

3

Number of consecutive world titles in double mini won
by Ruben Padilla

4.1M+

Followers
on Social Media

310

Number of medals won by U.S. athletes in international competitions

Caroline Moreau

NEW QUAD, NEW HISTORY

Katie Borcheding
& Maya Lissenkova

© Julien Blanc

Anna Filipp

© Kateryna Tytarenko

2025: New Quad, New History

With the Paris 2024 Olympics in the rearview mirror, U.S. athletes in 2025 shone just as brightly, making history in a range of disciplines with a series of “firsts”.

Men’s Artistic

20-time U.S. medalist Donnell Whittenburg became the first U.S. man to win a World still rings title at the championships this October. With a record-breaking sixth appearance at the 2025 World Championships in Jakarta, Indonesia, the 31-year-old Whittenburg’s gold on the apparatus also saw him surpass Kurt Thomas as the oldest American man to win a World title.

A month later at the Junior World Championships in the Philippines, Dante Reive followed in Whittenburg’s footsteps to become the first junior World champion on still rings and the first American man to win a title at a Junior World Championship since its inception in 2019. Just days before Reive’s individual accomplishment, he joined forces with Danila Leykin and Nathan Roman to win the country’s first junior World medal for the men with team bronze.

Dante Reive

© Ricardo Bufolin

Rin Keys

© Kateryna Tytarenko

Rhythmic

Already the first American to medal at the Rhythmic Junior World Championships in 2023, Rin Keys at the age of 16 again made history as the first American athlete to win a senior medal in 2025, taking silver on ball in Rio de Janeiro to win the country’s first medal in Rhythmic World Championships history. Keys also was fourth on hoop in Rio to post the highest U.S. finish ever on the apparatus.

The U.S. junior delegation added to the rhythmic history, claiming team silver to win the country’s first rhythmic World team medal. The team was comprised of Anna Filipp, Alicia Liu, Alana Hirota, Nina Keys, Ziah Khan, Leyla Kukhmazova, Sasha Kuliyeu, Katherine Roytman and Natalie de la Rosa, who also earned bronze on hoop.

Ruben Padilla
© Filippo Tomasi

© Lloyd Smith

Trampoline & Tumbling

Already the world's best on double mini as a three-time consecutive World champion, in 2025 Ruben Padilla became the first American man in 51 years to win an individual trampoline medal at a World Championships. He earned silver on the apparatus to become the first U.S. man to do so since Stormy Eaton in 1974.

In World Cup action, at the 2025 Antibes World Cup in France, Padilla became the first U.S. individual trampoline World Cup gold medalist since Charlotte Drury in 2014 and the first American men's gold medalist since Logan Dooley in 2009. In February, Alexandra Mytnik and Trevor Harder claimed the first mixed synchronized trampoline title at the Baku World Cup in Azerbaijan.

On the junior level, Rafi Pikofsky-Christiansen became the first U.S. gymnast to win a title at a Junior World Championships with gold in men's double mini.

Shea Rudolph
© Julien Blanc

Acrobatic

2025 saw the quadrennial The World Games (TWG) return for its 12th edition in Chengdu, China, where the women's group of Olivia Green, Rebecca Greenberg and Caylei Caldwell became the first American athletes to win a women's group medal at a TWG competition.

Parkour

American history at The World Games extended into the parkour discipline, where Shea Rudolph became the first U.S. parkour athlete to medal at competition since the discipline's introduction to the event in 2022. Rudolph won a bronze medal in the men's freestyle division to etch his name into the history books and to conclude a successful 2025 season for himself.

A NEW BEGINNING

Ashlee
Sullivan

SP15TH

Leanne Wong

A NEW BEGINNING ARTISTIC

The FIG World Championships in Asia for juniors and seniors were a highlight of the artistic season in 2025, as the United States collected 13 combined medals across both events to kick off the first global championship of the new Olympic quadrennium.

The U.S. men etched history on both the junior and senior level, with Donnell Whittenburg winning the first World still rings title in Indonesia, the men's trio of Danila Leykin, Dante Reive and Nathan Roman winning the first junior World team medal in the Philippines; and Reive picking up the first men's gold on rings. On the women's side, Leanne Wong and Joscelyn Roberson each took their place on the World podium, while Lavi Crain picked up the junior women's first gold since 2019.

2025 FIG Junior and Senior Artistic World Championships

Total Medals: 13 – Women: 6 (1 gold, 1 silver, 4 bronze) • Men: 7 (3 gold, 1 silver, 3 bronze)

GOLD (4)

Donnell Whittenburg, still rings
Brody Malone, horizontal bar
Lavi Crain, junior women's vault
Dante Reive, junior still rings

SILVER (2)

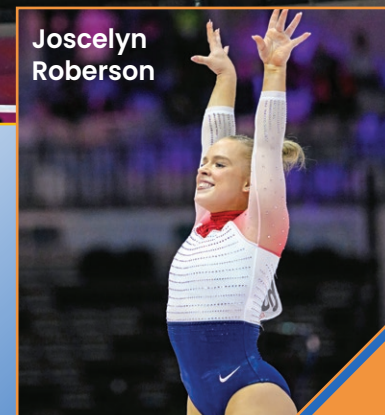

Leanne Wong, women's all-around
Danila Leykin, junior horizontal bar

BRONZE (7)

Patrick Hoopes, pommel horse
Joscelyn Roberson, women's vault
Caroline Moreau, junior uneven bars
Caroline Moreau, junior balance beam
Danila Leykin, junior parallel bars
Junior Men's team (Danila Leykin, Dante Reive, Nathan Roman, Maksim Kan)
Junior Women's team (Charleigh Bullock, Lavi Crain, Caroline Moreau, Addy Fulcher)

Brody Malone

Joscelyn Roberson

Danila Leykin

A NEW BEGINNING ARTISTIC

However, the world class performances in Asia at the tail end of the year was only the punctuation of a great year. 2025 saw American gymnasts achieve great success in the international circuit including: Jayla Hang's World Cup Series floor exercise title; Charleigh Bullock's Junior Pan American Games all-around gold and advancement to the 2027 Pan American Games; Patrick Hoopes' pommel horse bronze at the World University Games; and the 125 total international medals and 14 World Cup medals won by all artistic athletes this year.

As usual, the domestic events and achievements throughout the season helped bring awareness to the new and upcoming talent within the states and also prepared athletes for their competitions abroad. New U.S. all-around champions were crowned at the 2025 Xfinity U.S. Gymnastics Championships in Asher Hong, Hezly Rivera, Maksim Kan, Jakson Kurecki and Caroline Moreau.

Earlier that summer Claire Pease and Lavi Crain each secured all-around titles at the 2025 U.S. Classic Presented by Saatva; which served as Crain's second major U.S. title of the year after her junior all-around win at the 2025 Winter Cup in February in Louisville, Kentucky. Ashlee Sullivan was the senior Winter Cup winner for the women and Riley Loos and Adam Lakomy were the senior and junior champions on the men's side.

Lavi
Crain

Kaden Brown

2025

A NEW BEGINNING TRAMPOLINE & TUMBLING

Ruben Padilla shattered even more barriers in 2025 to lead the USAG T&T corps. In August, he set a difficulty score world record with his 13.9 at the Coimbra World Cup, then closed out the year in November with a World Championships for the ages in Pamplona, Spain. At age 24, Padilla won his third-consecutive double mini title, added DMT team gold, and ended with a silver on trampoline, becoming the first U.S. men's World Championships medalist in the event in 51 years.

American T&T athletes finished the year with nearly 50 international medals, including seven at the Junior World Championships and Age Group Competition, led by Rafi Pikofsky-Christiansen's gold in junior men's DMT. On the tumbling track, Kaden Brown won his sixth straight U.S. title and successfully defended his The World Games title from 2022, while Gracie Harder won The World Games silver on DMT. In trampoline, Kennedi Roberts and Ryan Maccagnan each claimed gold at the Junior Pan Am Games to earn automatic berths to the 2027 Senior Pan American Games.

U.S. Medal Table

2025 FIG Trampoline World Championships

GOLD (3)

Ruben Padilla, Men's DMT

Men's DMT Team (West Fowler, Trevor Harder, Ruben Padilla, Simon Smith)

Women's DMT Team (Susan Gill, Gracie Harder, Aliah Raga, Kennedi Roberts)

SILVER (2)

Ruben Padilla, Men's TRA

Men's Tumbling Team (Kaden Brown, West Fowler, Xavier Harper, BJ Mensah)

BRONZE (1)

West Fowler, Men's DMT

All photos on page, © Filippo Tomasi

Rin Keys
© Morgan Hurd

A NEW BEGINNING RHYTHMIC

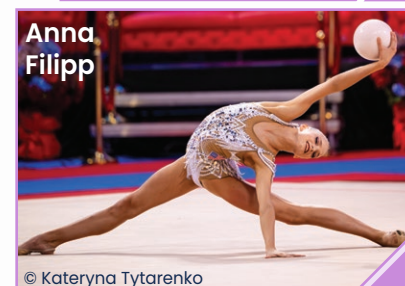

The history made by American rhythmic athletes at the World Championships was only part of a hugely successful season. In a year that saw U.S. gymnasts prove themselves on a global level and an increase in international medals from 2024, the rhythmic discipline has begun the new quad in an impactful way.

Highlighted by individual World medals from senior Rin Keys and junior Natalie de la Rosa, including a team medal from the junior team, the American rhythmic program collected nearly 80 medals in competition abroad in 2025. More than 30 of those honors being won across junior and senior Pan American competition.

Domestically, Keys wowed the American crowd with her complete sweep of senior U.S. titles in Rhode Island and successful defense of her 2024 all-around gold, while Riko Kawai took the U.S. junior all-around crown to conclude the season stateside.

Natalie de la Rosa
© Ricardo Bufolin

Anna Filipp
© Kateryna Tytarenko

© Kateryna Tytarenko

Olivia Green,
Rebecca Greenberg
& Caylei Caldwell

© Julien Blanc

2025

A NEW BEGINNING ACROBATIC

Yaroslav &
Vsevolod
Ossolodkov

Mei Futamase,
Maia Garma &
Chloe Wilson

Avery Barnes,
Ally Taynton &
Reagan Grigsby

Photos above: © Lloyd Smith

Highlighted by a historical silver medal at The World Games in China by Olivia Green, Rebecca Greenberg and Caylei Caldwell, the American acrobatic program saw immense achievement in 2025. In addition to winning a number for World Cup medals across various divisions, U.S. acrobats capped off the year with a wildly successful showing at the 2025 Pan American Championships in Puerto Rico – finishing the competition with 32 medals overall.

After a junior season for the books, brothers Yaroslav and Vsevolod Ossolodkov returned as seniors in 2025 where they claimed three all-around titles at World Cup competitions throughout the year and also swept national titles within their division at the 2025 USA Gymnastics Championships in Rhode Island.

In total, the program collected nearly 60 medals, almost half gold, in international competition this season.

A NEW BEGINNING PARKOUR

Audrey Johnson
© Julien Blanc

Johnny Brown
© Julien Blanc

In a program that continues to raise the bar, Shea Rudolph emerged as the standard-bearer for USA Gymnastics parkour in 2025.

The 25-year-old accounted for all three international medals won by American parkour athletes on the year, with men's freestyle silver medals at the Amsterdam and Montpellier World Cups and freestyle bronze at The World Games in Chengdu, China. Rudolph's success added up – he came away with the 2025 World Cup Series freestyle title to post yet another American parkour first.

In addition to Rudolph, Johnny Brown, Brittany Durant, Roland Hannigan, Jacob Jeweler, Audrey Johnson, George Munro and Jemini Powell all rostered for the U.S. in international competition.

A NEW BEGINNING GYMNASTICS FOR ALL

The Gymnastics for All season culminated in the 31st annual USA Gymnastics for All GymFest in Waco, Texas. Nearly 400 athletes competed in Power TeamGym, Acrobatics and Tumbling, and non-competitive opportunities. The year also brought the announcement of another big event on the horizon: beginning in 2026, USA Gymnastics will launch an Acrobatics and Tumbling Development Program National Championships.

Photos © Rosa Poetschke

2025

A NEW BEGINNING YOUTH GYMNASTICS

Xcelebration event set for 2027

At the 2025 National Congress in New Orleans, USA Gymnastics announced that it will launch a new women's artistic gymnastics event, National Xcelebration, beginning in 2027. To be held annually each June and designed to celebrate athletes in the Xcel Platinum, Diamond, and Sapphire divisions, the National Xcelebration will provide a national competitive opportunity for women's artistic gymnasts who qualify through their respective regional meets. The Xcelebration will provide a platform to bring thousands of athletes together to engage this thriving element of the sport. And beginning in spring of 2026, USA Gymnastics will host the inaugural Acrobatics and Tumbling Development Program National Championships.

Youth programs are the engine driving USA Gymnastics membership, with more than 100,000 athletes annually participating in USAG Development and Xcel programs, local invitational, State Championships, and Regional Championships across the country.

In 2025, thousands of young athletes participated in a wide range of regional and national-level events. Highlights included the USA Gymnastics Development Program National Championships in Salt Lake City, Utah; Men's Artistic Eastern and Western Championships in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, and Reno, Nevada; Women's Artistic Eastern and Western Championships in Battle Creek, Michigan and Fargo, North Dakota; Acrobatic Program Flip-n-Fun Championships in Sevierville, Tennessee; Rhythmic Development Program Championships in West Pal Beach, Fla., and the Stars & Stripes Trampoline & Tumbling Championships in Minneapolis.

COMMUNITY CELEBRATION

MIC GYM
CHAMP

(L-R) Gary Anderson, Missy Marlowe, Morgan Hurd, Rebecca Sereda, Barry Weiner, Colter Yancey, Elaine Yancey

Six new inductees entered the USA Gymnastics Hall of Fame at the 2025 induction ceremony held Saturday, August 9 in New Orleans, in conjunction with the USAG National Congress. The Class of 2025 was comprised of Olympic and World Championship athletes, influential coaches, and lifelong contributors and supporters of the sport of gymnastics. Inductees included Lifetime Achievement Award winners Gary Anderson and Marc Yancey; women's artistic athletes Morgan Hurd and Melissa "Missy" Marlowe; rhythmic athlete Rebecca Sereda; and men's artistic coach Barry Weiner.

2025 Annual Award Winners

Each year, USA Gymnastics recognizes individual award winners throughout the season. 2025 awardees were recognized at the USA Gymnastics Championships in June and the Xfinity U.S. Gymnastics Championships in August.

ACROBATIC

Athletes of the Year
Vsevolod Ossolodkov & Yaroslav Ossolodkov

Sportsperson of the Year
Olivia Green, Rebecca Greenberg & Caylei Caldwell

Coach of the Year
Natalya Ossolodkov

Glenn Sundby Award (SR)
Olivia Green, Rebecca Greenberg & Caylei Caldwell

Glenn Sundby Award (13-19)
Neko Sullivan & Radomir Ossolodkov

Janet VonBargen Award
Trisha LeVeque

Star Service Award
Marie Annonson

MEN'S ARTISTIC

Athlete of the Year
Stephen Nedoroscik

Sportsperson of the Year
Frederick Richard

Coach of the Year
Xiao Yuan

Development Coach of the Year
Nori Iwai

Frank J. Cumiskey Service Award
Michael Serra

WOMEN'S ARTISTIC

Athlete of the Year
Jayla Hang

Sportsperson of the Year
Nola Matthews

Coach of the Year
Cale Robinson

Connie Maloney Dedication to Sport Award
Kathy Ostberg

Development Club of the Year
AIM Athletics Texans Gymnastics

Xcel Program Club of the Year
Metzler's Gymnastic Center

Star Service Award
Linda Johnson

RHYTHMIC

Athlete of the Year
Rin Keys

Sportsperson of the Year
Yana Golovan

Coach of the Year
Jenya Tkachenko

Star Service Award
Dr. Cynthia LaBella

TRAMPOLINE & TUMBLING

Athletes of the Year
Ruben Padilla, Aliaksei Shostak & Nastia Katchalova

Sportsperson of the Year
Kennedi Roberts

Coaches of the Year
Dmitri Poliaroush, Becky Walker & Sven Nielsen

Star Service Award
Alex Renkert

Some of the most important days on the USA Gymnastics calendar are those that acknowledge and uplift the sport and those within the gymnastics community. In 2025, USA Gymnastics athletes and clubs nationwide celebrated the sport and its coaches as part of National Gymnastics Day (#NGD2025) Sept. 20 and National Coaches Day Oct. 6.

USA Gymnastics once again sent wall banners to all member clubs and provided printable activity sheets on the #NGD2025 website. For the first time, three different USA Gymnastics partners donated six prizes for those who celebrated #NGD2025 on social media: Nike, Spieth America and GK Elite provided equipment or shopping sprees to randomly selected clubs.

National Coaches Day saw athletes and clubs honor coaches with tribute posts, many including activity sheets provided by USA Gymnastics. A post from T&T athlete Isla Scritchfield about her coach, Juwan Young of Silver Stars Gymnastics, earned them both a prize pack from USA Gymnastics, including a backpack filled with an assortment of USAG items.

COMMUNITY CELEBRATION CONGRESS / EDUCATION

With membership on the rise, the USAG Member Services department has a growing community with which to work. USA Gymnastics had nearly 240,000 members by the end of 2025, with the number of coaches, club owners, meet directors or judges growing to 35,000.

National and Regional Congresses are where active members of the community annually convene and partake in scores of educational sessions. Collectively in 2025, these congresses produced 675 live educational presentations for more than 5,940 participants around the country. Of course, it isn't all work: Congress is also an opportunity to socialize and celebrate.

USA Gymnastics Creator Program takes off

The 2025 season saw the launch of the inaugural USA Gymnastics Creator Program, designed to provide current and recently graduated college or elite gymnasts the opportunity to gain experience in creative fields. A total of eight athletes – including one Hall of Famer – with backgrounds in women’s artistic, men’s artistic, and trampoline and tumbling participated. They were credentialed as USAG contributors for the USA Gymnastics Championships, U.S. Classic Presented by Saatva, and the Xfinity U.S. Gymnastics Championships, where they captured photos and video and/or wrote event recaps and feature stories. Their work was then shared on USAG channels, expanding their reach and giving them valuable professional experience, all while providing USAG with content through an athlete lens.

(Photo above, L-R): Sarah Firth, Andres Esquivel-Garza, Kalyxta Gamiao, Morgan Hurd, Evan Manivong; not pictured: Caleb Cave, Ian Gunther and Zachary McCue)

COMMUNITY CELEBRATION TEAM BEHIND THE TEAM

USA Gymnastics Medical Team

It takes a village to help keep athletes performing their best, and the USA Gymnastics Medical Team was there every step of the way during the 2025 season.

Serving every facet of the elite talent pipeline, 64 USA Gymnastics medical providers and scores of volunteers provided support at 115 USAG events and camps throughout the year and completed nearly 5,500 medical treatments. USAG’s mental health reimbursement program continued to be an important support program, with National Team athletes and coaches utilizing the program for 161 visits with providers of their choice.

© Julia Pilkus

Following its relaunch in 2024, the USA Gymnastics Foundation focused efforts in 2025 on building a culture of philanthropy through fundraising and sustained support for athletes and the greater gymnastics community. The mission of the USA Gymnastics Foundation is to inspire world-class achievement at all levels of the sport and in life and is guided by a vision of Empowering Champions and Enriching Communities for all-around success.

In 2025, the Foundation distributed more than $316,000 in support of mental health and wellness programs, regional camps and clinics, scholarships, competition support, and grants to elite athletes. These investments reflect the power of a community united in supporting our athletes and its impact is made possible by donors at every level.

© USAG | Jaci John

The Foundation distributed more than $316,000 in support of mental health and wellness programs, regional camps and clinics, scholarships, competition support, and grants to elite athletes.

The Foundation's board members provide critical direction through their commitment of time, talents and generous financial support. Champions Council and Podium Club donors make the Foundation's ongoing work possible through their meaningful gifts and sustained involvement. The Foundation continues their commitment to building a strong philanthropic community in support of athletes across every discipline as LA 2028 approaches.

2025

CAMPAIGN TO BUILD TRAINING & WELLNESS CENTER TAKES FLIGHT

USA Gymnastics in September announced the selection of Noblesville, Indiana's "Innovation Mile" as the location for its proposed Training & Wellness Center (TWC) and new office headquarters. The state-of-the-art facility will bring together the sport of gymnastics for events and camps from the youth level through National Team.

President and CEO Li Li Leung made the announcement with the help of Noblesville mayor Chris Johnson, Hall of Fame women's artistic athlete Jaycie Phelps and trampoline & tumbling World Championships gold medalist Alex Renkert, both of whom have roots in the Indianapolis area. Noblesville is located just 20 miles north of USA Gymnastics' current headquarters in downtown Indianapolis.

USAG launched a fundraising campaign to support the construction and operation of the TWC, with a completion target date of 2028.

PHOTOS OF THE YEAR

Megan Chu
© Kateryna Tytarenko

PHOTO
OF THE YEAR
WINNER

THE WORLD GAMES 2025 CHENGDU

Olivia Green, Rebecca Greenberg
& Caylei Caldwell

© Julien Blanc

 THE WORLD GAMES
2025 CHENGDU

特步

 四川航空
SICHUAN AIRLINES

PHOTO
OF THE YEAR
WINNER

(L-R) Skye Blakely, Leanne Wong, Dulcy Caylor, Gabrielle Hardie, Jayla Hang, Simone Rose, Ashlee Sullivan & Joscelyn Roberson celebrate Caylor's automatic selection to the World Championships team.

© Alicia Malnatti

PHOTO
OF THE YEAR
WINNER

Donnell Whittenburg

PHOTO
OF THE YEAR
WINNER

Xavier Harper, West Fowler, BJ Mensah & Kaden Brown

© Filippo Tomasi

PHOTO
OF THE YEAR
WINNER

Natalie de la Rosa
© Ricardo Bufolin

PHOTO
OF THE YEAR
WINNER

Shea Rudolph
© Julien Blanc

Tiana Sumanasekera

© John Cheng

THANK YOU TO OUR PARTNERS

xfinity

P&G

Prevagen®

saatva

 SPIETH

AAI®

© Ricardo Bufolin